

PRESS RELEASE

Now it is here; a new edited and richly illustrated version of H.C. Andersen's memories from his childhood and youth.

In the book, H.C. Andersen write about his birth and childhood in Odense, about his journey to and stay in Copenhagen, about his stay at the Latin schools in Slagelse and Elsinore - and about his infatuation in RiborgVoigt, whom he met during one of his visits to Fyn.

Before he becomes a student and subsequently unfolds as a writer, poet and playwright, we read of his attempts as a singer, actress and ballet dancer, and what is being talked about, he could be a farmer or a bookbinder, a tailor or watchmaker work at office or, as his father, become a shoemaker, and how he, in Odense, tries to work as a workforce at a clothing factory and a tobacco factory, and in Copenhagen, in Gothersgade, as a workforce in a carpentry.

This new danish textual, revised edition of H.C. Andersens' autobiography book, is an attempt to actualize this central work for a contemporary reader.

Jens Staubrand is an author and master of philosophy. He has published a number of books and is the mind behind a number of cultural events at home and abroad. See www.staubrand.dk
