New English-Danish 'turn around' book on Søren Kierkegaard's struggle for life at Frederiks Hospital in Copenhagen

In shops: 8/9-2014

With the help of a number of physicians, Ole Hansen, Thomas Elo Christensen, Henrik Hertz and Kaare Weismann as well as the pharmacist Aage Marcher, the writer and philosopher, MA. Jens Staubrand, has closely analysed and interpreted Søren Kierkegaard's medical records from his stay in the fall of 1855 at the Royal Frederik's Hospital in Copenhagen.

Søren Kierkegaard was hospitalized for about 8 weeks and died on the evening of November 11th, 1855.

The analysis and interpretation of the clinical records to determine that Søren Kierkegaard probably died of tuberculosis of the spine.

The book is richly illustrated.

Gwyn Hodgson has translated the book from Danish to English.
